

UNIVERSITY of HAWAII[®]
MĀNOA

Dean, College of Arts and Humanities

The University of Hawai'i at Mānoa (UH Mānoa) seeks an innovative, motivated and experienced leader to serve as Dean of the College of Arts and Humanities (A&H). Building upon the many strengths of the University, as well as the unique attributes of Hawai'i and its indigenous and multi-cultural populations, the successful candidate has an exciting opportunity to lead A&H to a stronger intellectual presence in Hawai'i, the Asia-Pacific region and around the globe.

The College of Arts and Humanities is dedicated to the principle that a liberal education is central to the University mission of helping students meet the challenges of life and society. The College is comprised of the following departments: American Studies, Art & Art History, Communicology, Creative Media, History, Music, Philosophy, Religion, and Theatre & Dance. Because of the geographical location of our university, the College is especially conscious of the present and future importance of the Asia-Pacific region and offers unique opportunities for the study of the histories, arts, philosophies, religions, cultures and peoples of these areas.

The Dean of the College has a dual role that involves both College leadership and administration. With respect to leadership, the Dean sets the tone for the College by working proactively to articulate the College's values and goals. In this sense, the Dean ensures that the College values define the academic climate and drive its activities and endeavors. Secondly, the Dean oversees the College's governance system. The goal is to ensure that the system operates effectively with equal access by all members of the College community. The Dean oversees day-to-day College operations and activities and represents the College of Arts and Humanities within the Colleges of Arts and Sciences and the University, and to the Hawai'i community at large. For more information about the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa and the College, please go to www.manoa.hawaii.edu and <http://www.hawaii.edu/arthurm>.

UH Mānoa is one of the premier institutions of higher learning in the Pacific Region and belongs to an international community of research universities. It is the flagship campus of the UH System and enrolls more than 20,000 students. There are 1,575 UH Mānoa students who are majoring in programs within A&H. These students comprise 1,173 undergraduate and 402 graduate students. There are approximately 150 instructional faculty members in the College.

UH Mānoa is one of the nation's few land-, sea- and space-grant institutions, and plays a unique role in serving Hawaiian, Asian and Pacific communities through education, research, outreach and service. Many of the University's fields of study relate directly to the distinctive geographical and cultural setting of Hawai'i, an island community with diverse eco-systems and an exceptional diversity of cultures.
